NAZI FLEET SAILS TO SPAIN

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

IT IS a well-established political tradition that when an administration has been overturned in an election all further attempts at legislation shall be suspended until the new administration has taken office. This is for the obvious reason that whatever the defeated administration might propose in its brief remaining months its acts would be suspected of being those of a political "lame duck." Rightly or wrongly, Governor Futrell's suggestion of a special session for the legislature seems to be so suspected by the adherents of Carl Bailey, the incoming governor.

of Nominee Declare

LITTLE ROCK. — (AP) — The State Welfare Commission executive committee issued a statement Thursday declaring that the allocation of 35 per cent of sales tax monies to the welfare fund would enable the state to double pension payments to the aged and blind.

The commission said the welfare fund is now paying an average of $3 per month to the aged and blind.

Motive Questioned
LITTLE ROCK—Friends of Carl B. Bailey, Democratic nominee for governor, are anxiously waiting for an expression from him concerning Governor Futrell's suddenly-announced decision to consult members of the legislature about calling a special session.

Handicapped by inability to get in touch with their chief, who is recuperating from the recent campaign in some unannounced retreat, Bailey supporters were frankly suspicious of the governor's move, in view of his bitter hostility toward his successor.

Some appointments made by the governor since the legislature adjourned must be confirmed by the senate and there was some talk that it is desired to have a new governor and a partly new senate take office.

Also there was some discussion to the effect that the governor wishes to prevent Mr. Bailey from receiving any possible credit for a prospective increase in the amounts available for welfare and old age pension purposes.

Welfare, Old Age Pensions
Apparently concerned over the fact that only $200,000 of the $3,268,348 collected through the 2 per cent sales tax during the first year of operation of the law has found its way into the state welfare fund, Governor Futrell said that he is planning to call a special session of the legislature to appropriate 35 per cent of the tax directly for welfare and old age pension purposes.

The governor announced that he had sent a letter to all members of the legislature asking if they desire a special session to correct an oversight of the 1935 regular session by appropriating an accumulation of $485,641 from the general revenue sales tax fund to pay old age pensions.

A half-dozen members of the legislature who conferred with the governor Wednesday expressed approval of the proposed call and said they believed 85 to 90 per cent of the members would approve it.

The governor said issuance of the MOSCOW, Russia.—(Copyright Associated Press)—Gregory Zinovieff, accused maker of a bloody plot against the Soviet regime of Joseph Stalin, testified at his trial Thursday that the terrorist conspiracy, if successful, would have put Russia on the road to Fascism.

Accepting full guilt for the conspiracy, alleged to have included the intended assassination of Stalin and other high Soviet figures, the famous old Bolshevik declared:

Football Prospect for U. A. Is Bright

Boyd Cypert Addresses
Hempstead County's University Boosters

Prospects of the University of Arkansas football team winning the Southwestern Conference title this fall are the brightest in recent years, Boyd Cypert, business manager of athletics, told the Hempstead county U. A. booster club at a luncheon meeting Wednesday noon at Hotel Barlow.

Cypert said that 40 varsity men were returning to school this fall and 30 outstanding Arkansas High School athletes were expected to matriculate.

He said that Coach Fred Thompson had arranged a 10-game schedule that included six conference battles. The Razorbacks open the season September 26 to Fayetteville against Kansas State Teachers college and close with a centennial battle against the University of Texas at Little Rock December 5.

Cypert came here on a tour of Southwest Arkansas to revive interest in booster clubs of this section.

Following the luncheon meeting, Terrell Cornelius, chairman of the Hempstead county club, announced that a meeting of the club would be held at his home on South Pine street next Tuesday night.

Mr. Cornelius urged the attendance of all former students of the University. He said that new officers would be elected and an effort would be made to strengthen the Hempstead club. The membership fee is $1.

The Razorback schedule as released here by Mr. Cypert:

September 26—Kansas State Teachers at Fayetteville.
October 3—T. C. U. at Fort Worth.
October 10—Baylor at Fayetteville.
October 16—George Washington University at Washington, D. C.
October 21—L. S. U. at Shreveport.
October 31—Texas A. & M. at College Station.
November 7—Rice at Fayetteville (homecoming).
November 14—S. M. U. at Dallas.
November 26—Tulsa University at Tulsa.
December 5—University of Texas at Little Rock.

Legion Auxiliary Elects Delegates

Mrs. Swanke, Mrs. Mc-

Smith Convention

Mrs. Arthur Swanke and Mrs. M. M. McCloughan were named Wednesday as Hempstead county delegates to the State American Legion and Auxiliary convention to be held in Fort Smith August 23, 24 and 25.

They were chosen Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the auxiliary in the home of Mrs. W. M. Ramsey, North Hervey street, where Mrs. F. S. Franklin acted as co-hostess.

Selection of new officers were announced as:

Mrs. M. M. McCloughan, re-nominated president; Mrs. Ernest O'Neill, vice-president; Mrs. Arthur Swanke, secretary; Mrs. B. R. Hamm, treasurer.

The American Legion post of Hempstead county will meet at 8 p. m. Thursday at Hope city hall to select delegates to the state convention and elect new officers.

Every World war veteran in the county is urged to be present.

Turnback Fund Is Limited to Roads

Federal and State Agencies to Audit County
Judge Expenditures

LITTLE ROCK.—A special audit of the county highway turnback fund in all counties was started Wednesday by the state comptroller's office and the State Highway Department to determine whether the fund has been used exclusively for highway purposes.

The United States Bureau of Public Roads has held that the half-cent gasoline tax turned back to the counties shall be construed as state highway revenue under terms of the federal act and that it must be used exclusively for highway purposes before the state can qualify for federal aid without matching it with state funds.

Fourteen accountants from the office of State Comptroller Griffin Smith and a similar number of auditors and accountants from the State Highway Department staff started work on the special audit yesterday. They will work in teams of two, one man from each department. It was estimated that the study of county highway fund records will require from 10 days to two weeks.

After the status of the fund has been determined in each county, as of July 1, arrangements will be made to cancel or to pay from some other source any outstanding warrants issued for purposes not connected with building or maintaining county roads.

County judges will be requested to sign an agreement to use the turnback money exclusively for highway purposes hereafter. Also they will be required to file certified financial statements with the Highway Department quarterly showing receipts and purposes for which the turnback money was disbursed.

Mussolini Musters 200,000
Fascist Fighters for Any Emergency

By the Associated Press
Cross-currents of the bloody struggle between Fascists-Monarchists and Socialists-Communists in war-torn Spain added Thursday throughout European capitals.

Germany, whose National Socialist regime is sympathetic to the cause of the Spanish Fascist rebels, stormed an iron-clad boat into the picture with seven Nazi warships speeding toward Spain under forced draft.

Joining the Nazis in the European alignment of sympathy toward the Fascist rebels, Premier Mussolini ordered 200,000 of his Fascist legions into war game maneuvers at Avellino, and kept Italy's class of 1914 mobilized.

Rebels Repulsed

MADRID, Spain.—(Copyright Associated Press)—Government forces, in hot engagements with the Fascist rebels, Thursday established a new line of defense about 100 miles southwest of Madrid.

Naval moral de la Mata was reported in flames with the rebels in headlong flight before the victorious government troops; and in Alia the government declared the rebels were routed after a two-hour siege.

Europe May Intervene
PARIS, France.—(AP)—France and Great Britain, informed Paris said Thursday, may undertake mediation in an effort to prevent the reported Spanish government's seizure of a German merchant ship from having serious repercussions.

German warship commanders would prevent any repetition of the reported Makerun incident, with all means after a two-hour siege.

Catalonia Secedes

BARCELONA, Spain.—(AP)—The Catalan government moved Wednesday night virtually to secede from the rest of Spain. After the Generalist government council, decreed confiscation of all private property on Russian collectivist lines, it took steps to sever its ties with the Madrid government. It will henceforth, the council declared, in complete independence in maintaining public order.

The delegate to the central government was relieved of his duties and the government announced its intention to determine its own policies on all matters, including immigration, emigration and the administration of justice.

"The state of war existing here," it declared, "makes it opportune to eliminate dual control and to place all responsibility in one place."

An official bulletin proclaiming the decree relieved all magistrates, judges, state prosecutors and other personnel appointed by the central government of their duties immediately.

All Industries Seized
Workers took control of all industries in the Catalan autonomous region on the pattern of Soviet Russia. The seizure wiped out the last vestige of private, capitalist ownership. The decree promulgated plans for a single tax and speedy suppression of multiple taxation. The basis for the new tax plan, although undecided, was presumed to be income, not land, as the large agricultural properties are to be collectivized.

U. S. Concerns Involved
Among American concerns with properties in Catalonia are the General Motors Corporation and the Ford Motor Company. Their plants are affiliated with the parent companies in the United States, but operated partly by Spanish capital.

(The United States embassy has warned the Madrid government indemnification would be expected for any American properties confiscated.)

Turned Brown By Brown Turner

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(Special)—From the warm cotton prices have been going down the last few days it looks like southern farmers must have worked overtime making a good crop. But they'll make up for it on corn if they raised any corn.

A few days ago one of the press services carried an article about some slicker selling a carload of mechanical refrigerators to Eskimos and we all grinned out loud. Now a lot of cities which have taxed everything from peanuts to pumpkins are about to be sold meters at $50 a copy to fill niches from people who park their cars on the streets. Happy days are here again!

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

The scientific physician no longer recognizes that there are such things as tonics.

In the old days tonics contained iron, quinine, strychnine, or arsenic, and a considerable amount of spiritus frumenti, or alcohol. The alcohol gave a "kick" which made a person feel better, and the drugs were of the type which stimulated the nervous system and increased the amount of red coloring matter in the blood.

For a long time it was thought that bitter drugs would stimulate the appetite. Nowadays we know that there is no tonic except good food, fresh air, and the development of abundant health.

An English physician, Sir William Broadbent, once said:
"A falsehood that dies hard is the idea that stimulants of whatever kind necessary for maintenance of health and vigor. Such is not the case, and the well-worn comparison that they are the whip and spur, and not the corn and grass, is strictly accurate."

"Anything accomplished under the influence of stimulants is done at the expense of blood and tissue and if frequently repeated, at the expense of the constitution."
A real tonic, therefore, is a substance which will build the tissue of the body, increase its reserve of energy, and make it better able to work. Certain reactions that may be provoked in the human body will cause the lungs to take in more oxygen and, in that way, give the body a higher reserve.

For example, a cold shower is stimulating, and a brisk rub associated with a cold shower aids the stimulation. When muscles contract, they burn sugar. When muscles become fatigued, they develop lactic acid from sugar. When oxygen is supplied to the muscles, by way of the blood, they change the lactic acid back to sugar. Anything which will improve the supply of oxygen to the tissues will actually serve as a tonic.

Another form of tonic is the material which helps to build blood. Certain foods, particularly liver and lamb's kidneys, and substances rich in iron, help to stimulate the development of red blood cells with plenty of hemoglobin.

A small amount of sunlight has a slightly stimulating or tonic quality, but over-exposure to the sun may have the opposite effect. Remember, however, that it is not well to rely on tonics of any kind for preservation of health. Health is a positive factor which is maintained by avoiding disease, exhaustion, and unnecessary exposure to the elements.

Health once destroyed may be regained only by eliminating the causes of disease and by permitting the tissues to restore themselves to the extent of which they are capable of restoration. Any kind of tonic is, after all, a whip or a spur to a tired horse.

Cold Causes Digestive Upsets.
Nevertheless we have to use judgment about doses, either of water or of food. When it comes to foods we must choose well, chew well and not mix too many slow digesters all at once. Children have a habit of eating themselves into bed if they are allowed to stuff on every sort of goodly all in one day. It isn't what we eat, so much, that makes us ill, but the way we mix it. And the way we down it, too.

Turn With the Seasons
Toward evening an insidious breeze springs up. This is the time to get the flannel shirt on baby, and sweaters on the rest of the children. Sometimes the sun does not come out at all in the mornings and a damp wind blows; on such a day let the woollens play a big part. And the blankets must be on hand ready to spread, no matter how warm it is when bed time comes. Bowls that chill at night begin to protest. You will blame it on the berries, or corn or melon perhaps and in a way rightly so; but unless there has been something very unfriendly in the diet the chances are that changeable weather is half to blame.

Colds in the head are often a combination of the two. Certain allergic foods have been found to be a factor in much colic, or in plain words, running nose. But change in weather of course makes a good partner. So to avoid illness, it is best to keep an eye open and permit neither stuffing on too many goodies or letting Johnny talk you out of that sweater. The season is turning and we have to turn with it.

Backs Into Movies
But he hadn't even considered the movies until he lost his money. He came over to Hollywood and had little trouble obtaining a 19-word bit in a picture ironically titled "If I Had a Million." All the camera saw of Hinds that time was the back of his neck and his left ear. Not a very auspicious beginning.

Since that day, however, he has played 93 featured roles. He has more offers for jobs than he is able to accept. He has paid his debts. And he's happy, though not quite a millionaire.

His roles are mostly those of dignified gentlemen, though once he was a condemned prisoner, and again the head of a kidnap gang. He often is a judge, a lawyer, or a doctor.

He has directed United States fleet maneuvers, and commands the famous frigate Constitution in "The Gorgeous Hussy." Hinds was the sheriff in "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and the secretary of war in "Rendezvous."

"Father" of Stars
His first important break came when they cast him as the White House physician in "Gabriel Over the White House." Being Jean Parker's natural father in "Sequoia" was the part he liked best.

He also has fathered, in celluloid, Katharine Hepburn, Joan Bennett, Frances Dee, Carole Lombard, and Rosalind Russell.

Hinds has three daughters of his own, two attending Stanford University. They may go into the movies if they like, but Hinds is a little afraid they may choose to study law.

Complete vindication came to Samuel Hinds, the wayward son, when he was appearing with Paul Muni in "The World Moves On." "The makeup man was looking for types among photographs in an old book," he recalled. "It was called 'Eminent New Yorkers.'"

"I said, 'See if my father's picture is in it.' And sure enough, it was—a photograph taken in 1890. So I was made up to look like my dad."

When "Babies" Grow Up
The screen may offer a comeback road to people from other fields, but it isn't always so kind to its own. Thelma Margaret Montgomery, for one, "thirteen years ago, when she was 5."

"Baby Peggy" Montgomery dominated the position now so securely held by Shirley Temple. She dropped out of the limelight, and now finds the going hard.

Recently she was one of 150 girls doing scenery more than atmospheric work in "Girls' Dormitory."

And Marie Osborne, for another, she was "Baby Marie" Osborne once, and was paid $150 a week in the days when that was a lot of money. It's all gone now.

Ginger Rogers' mother, Lela Rogers, used to write scenarios for Baby Marie. And it was Mrs. Rogers who recently placed the same girl in a job as stand-in for Ginger.

Miss Osborne also is standing-in for Betty Furness. And hoping for the break that may mean a comeback.

NEW YORK

Although Major Edward Bowes, father to the Amateur Hour, is charged with having raised the false hopes of countless deluded youngsters, it happens that he has given impetus to a vast amount of fresh talent that otherwise would not have been discovered. In today's guest column, he delivers a personal message to innumerable amateurs everywhere.

—George Ross.
By MAJOR EDW. BOWES
NEW YORK—Since George Ross has been so gracious as to extend me the space of his column as a guest writer, I am taking the liberty of passing along a few words of friendly counsel to those of you who have ambitions to become entertainers.

First let me say that I believe profoundly in the ability of genuine talent to win out against seemingly insurmountable odds. If you have real talent and the courage to achieve, the entertainment world will receive you and inevitably find a place for you in its ranks.

You may be fortunate enough to be visited with the rare good luck of achieving success overnight; on the other hand, and this is far more likely, it may prove a tough, up-hill struggle. But if you have ability, and if you believe in your ability, and if you sit still through adversity, nothing can stop you, believe me.

Through the medium of my Amateur Hour broadcasts, I have been trying to provide people with an opportunity to find their niche. Since I believe in the inexorable law of the theater, that managers must select and employ the best talent available when producing an entertainment, I look for only one quality in the amateur artists who audition for me by the hundreds each week—talent.

Talent Worth Money
There are those who have applied for a chance on my program and been rejected because of a lack of talent who have said I denied them that chance because of personal prejudice. Nothing could be further from the truth. One of the chief purposes of the Amateur Hour broadcasts is to bring before the public young people who are deserving, through their ability, of a chance to be heard.

MAJOR BOWES: If you have real talent, nothing can stop you, believe me.

I try my utmost best to give everyone who comes to me a fair trial. The Amateur Hour is little over a year old. It is apparent that great stars cannot be developed in that brief time. Yet I have reason to believe that many of those ambitious young people who have appeared on my Sunday evening broadcasts have great promise and will eventually win fame and fortune in their own right.

Hundreds of these successful youngsters have been engaged all season long in personal appearances with the units that I have sent out across the country. These amateurs have been performing before paying audiences in regular theaters, audiences that demand a show for their prices of admission. In order for these amateurs to survive before those paying audiences, they had to make good on sheer ability.

The proof of the pudding is that audiences everywhere have applauded them and asked for more. Incidentally, there is plenty of room for others to follow, particularly the more seasoned professional artists. An amateur unit can only play a town for a week at most. These units have gone into theaters that were formerly "dark" and give evidence that the "drouth" still wants "live" entertainment.

Playing with these traveling units, is giving these young people a genuine opportunity to gain practical experience in show business for the years to come.

Amateurs No Longer
I can point already, with pardonable pride, to Clyde Barrie, brilliant young negro baritone, who made his public debut on one of my broadcasts in May of 1935. Prior to his appearance on my program, he had been an elevator operator, unable to obtain any other form of employment although he had a glorious voice.

He came to me through the regular channels of those who apply for an audition and scored not only with me but the vast radio audience as well. Today, he is a featured artist over the Columbia Broadcasting System, winning renewed popularity every day.

Then again, there is the cast of Jackie Billings, skillful young tap dancer, who was first introduced to the public on the Amateur Hour. Jackie has just left for Hollywood with a Universal Pictures contract in his pocket.

There are others, and there will be still others, who I firmly believe are deserving of and will win a place for themselves through the agency of the Amateur Hour.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MOLLY MILFORD, rich and popular, had received proposals of marriage from three suitors, but BERT STUART, whom she loved, has not asked her to marry him.

Bored with parties, Molly asks Bert to take her to "The Red Poppy," a "quaint little night club." He refuses. Molly, annoyed, goes with WICK ROSS, another admirer.

The lights go out suddenly and when they come on again Molly finds herself dancing with a handsome stranger. He is, in reality, NELSON FERGUSON, bank robber, and he is one of a group planning to visit Molly away and hold her for ransom.

Ferguson tells Molly his name is "ELDON WHITTAKER." A few days later he asks her to have dinner with him, and she agrees. Waiting for him at a downtown store, Molly encounters a girl who appears to be her exact double. Impulsively Molly exchanges her luxurious costume for the other girl's shabby one.

"Whittaker" goes to a place called "Frenchy's." Police arrive and there is shooting in which "Whittaker" is fatally injured. Molly is forced into a car and taken to a deserted farm house.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER VII

SUN streamed through a small, barred window into the room into which Molly had been unceremoniously thrust the night before.

But it was not the sun, but loud, angry voices that awakened her. "Of all the dirty rotten tricks!" He thought he could pull a joke like that on us and get by with it. Bringing a cheap little nobody—while that Milford girl!" The man's voice died in an angry rumble.

Molly could not distinguish the rest of the sentence, but she had heard enough.

For some reason the kidnappers were confused about her identity. They believed she was that other girl—the one she had changed dresses with. Molly did not even know the other girl's name.

She reached for the small brown purse, her heart fluttering wildly. Inside were a handkerchief, compact, a smaller coin purse with some loose change, and a letter.

The letter was postmarked the morning before and was addressed to Miss Leola Barlow. Molly hesitated for a moment. It was necessary for her to know something about this girl. Immediately, at any moment now the door might open and they would begin questioning her.

"Honey," the letter, written in a man's careless hand, began, "I'm sorry to break it like this, but Mae and I got married yesterday."

Molly put the letter back into the envelope soberly. In the next room the verbal warfare was continuing, punctuated frequently by a furious oath.

"It beats me. What did he expect to get out of a job like that?" "A good laugh. He was going back to Chicago, laughing up his sleeves at you and Louis," the woman said. "He knew you and Louis loved him like rat poison. Steve, and would have turned him up long ago if you hadn't been scared."

"Well, I did turn him up, didn't I?" A man's cold, menacing voice. "Sure you did, Steve. You trapped him with that bank robbery, and then told the police where to find him."

"Oh, dry up. What'll we do with the girl, Louis?" "I'm listenin' to you, Steve, but you know what I'd do."

"Bring her out."

The key grated in the lock. The door was thrown open and a man stood in the opening, surveying Molly with hostile eyes through the slits of a mask.

The man caught her by the arm and stared down at her face. "It beats all hell!" he exclaimed.

They were all masked. The woman and the two men formed an amusing circle around Molly. "Take a look at this," the fat man said, pointing a stubby finger at a large photograph on the front page of a newspaper.

Above her own picture, bold words leaped out at Molly, "Heiress Takes Own Life. Molly Milford, daughter of Jay Milford, commits suicide in department store. Body found on sofa in rest room by cleaning woman. Father prostrated, can give no motive."

Molly sat down weakly and covered her face with her hands. That poor, distraught girl! "All right, now, sister. It's your turn to talk. And talk fast!"

Molly swallowed hard. Her heart was leaping wildly. She must talk as that poor girl would have talked. If she didn't—"I didn't do nothing." It was him—Nelson.

"We know all about him—the dirty crook! How'd you happen to mix in with his game?" "I didn't know nothing about any game, I tell you," Molly spoke dully. "This Nelson—I met him once up in Chicago, and I was braggin' a little, I guess. I told him some of my friends said I looked enough like this Milford girl to be her sister. He said I didn't think lots of myself. And I said, 'Take a look at this,' and showed him a picture I cut out of a paper once. He said I could fool the girl's own mother and—"

phone. He said he'd blown in for a week-end and was throwin' a party for some of his friends. He said—I remember just what he said—

"Go on, girl!" Steve Black prompted.

"He said, 'Don't you think I'm swell to be throwin' a party for people who would put poison in my soup if they had the nerve?' I said, 'That sounds dangerous to me.' 'No,' he said, 'they're too high-class for poison, but they might give me the wrong steer.'"

"That sounds like Nelson, all right. The double-crossin' scoundrel!"

"Let her talk, Louis."

"He said he wanted me to dress up in the best things I had because he was going to play a joke on these friends and make them think he was okay with this Milford girl. 'They will eat it up, Leola,' he said. 'They're snobs, and won't play around with people who don't have money.' And then he laughed. So I dressed up and—"

"Well, you done it all right," Steve growled. "Now get back into that room."

Molly stood still for a moment after the door had closed behind her. She felt that terrible faintness coming over her again. But she must not faint. So much depended on keeping cool and sane. Evidently she had played her part well. They had been completely deceived.

It would be kind to destroy that revealing note, now that it had served its purpose.

Molly took the letter out of the purse once more and looked down at it.

The door was flung wide and the woman with the trowsy, corn-colored hair came in. "I'll trouble you for that purse," she said shortly. "And that letter, too."

She examined the purse carefully and then handed it back. She went out of the room with the letter in her hand. After a few moments she returned. Her voice held a hint of sympathy.

"I'll bring you some breakfast," she said. "If I was you I wouldn't waste any tears on that fellow. He don't sound so much to me. It wouldn't surprise me if you wouldn't be better off without him. With your looks you won't have any trouble finding somebody else. Just like he said."

"I know," Molly spoke wearily. Fear, unhappiness, hunger had made her feel really ill. Tears slipped down her white cheeks.

"We women are all alike, I guess," the masked woman said, "but you got more to cry about than a man."

With this doubtful consolation, she left the room.

Gold Policy Gives Trouble to G.O.P.

Landon Cautious, Seeking to Hold Borah in Republican Camp

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON—Out in Salt Lake City, John D. M. Hamilton, the Republican chairman, told interviewers that Governor Landon's monetary views did not indicate "a return necessarily to the gold standard."

That statement, made almost within throwing distance of Senator Borah's strongholds, had some appearance of a renewed invitation to the Idahoan to come actively into the campaign for Governor Landon.

That view was emphasized in certain pro-silver quarters when Hamilton added that the Landon position did not preclude "some arrangement in regard to silver."

Borah "Co-operates"

In his famous telegram to the Cleveland convention, Landon expressed his belief in ultimate return to a currency convertible into gold. The mention of gold in connection with the Republican monetary plank disturbed Borah, for it was at his insistence that the platform avoided all reference to gold.

When he returned to Idaho to enter the senatorial campaign, he put it squarely before the state's early leadership that his own views on currency might be at odds with the party's presidential candidate.

A month ago, in response to questions, Borah asserted he was not bolting the ticket and had been supporting the platform from the beginning. He did not say he had been supporting the platform as "amended" by Governor Landon.

Yet about the only Borah co-operation publicly evident in the month since was his continued attack on many phases of the New Deal during his primary campaign. He was co-operating to that extent before the Cleveland convention.

Playing Safe?
If Hamilton's remark in Salt Lake City was a forerunner of a clarification statement by Mr. Landon, certainly the Kansas governor has left himself ample opening in his early campaign speeches to cover such a subject.

He offered in advance only the vaguest hints of what he intended to say. It seemed possible that neither Mr. Hamilton nor Mr. Landon wanted to bid too strongly at this time for Borah support until they knew the outcome of the Idaho primary in which the senator had a Townsend candidate as opponent.

Guns Of Sundown

The colors rang from North to South
Along the western sky,
A red, as red as any month,
And purple like a cry.

Then quicker fires climbed the blue,
As if a thousand suns
Had set their golden fuses to
A thousand golden guns.

Miss Martha Ann Singleton was at home to a group of her young friends on the evening of August 16, at her home on East Second street. The occasion (a very interesting one in the life of a girl) was in celebration of the 16th birthday anniversary of the hostess. The guests were met on the lawn, which was festive with lighted lanterns and a graceful arrangement of potted plants. Following an hour of pleasant greetings and conversation, the guests were invited into the dining room, where a huge birthday cake reposed on a lace covered table, which was centered with a basket of snap dragons, baby breath and ferns, pink candles in silver holders completed the lovely appointments. The chosen color note of pink and white was still further emphasized in the flowers adorning the buffet. Mrs. A. D. Brannan presided over the cutting of the cake and Miss Bess Walker and Mrs. Carter Johnson served punch. Out of town friends among the fifty guests were Miss Jane Rogers of Smackover, Miss Jeannette Vesey of Brookings, S. ## Charges Against Doctors Dropped

Court Dismisses Case Brought by Heiress Ann Cooper Hewitt

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — (P) — Judge Razian Tuttle Wednesday dismissed mayhem conspiracy charges against the two physicians who sterilized heiress Ann Cooper Hewitt but left the way open for them to be prosecuted again. The court held the state had failed to establish a case against the physicians, Dr. Tilton E. Tiltman and Dr. Samuel G. Boyd.

Assistant District Attorney August Fourtner, declaring the court's action "all wrong," announced he would proceed against the doctors again.

The dismissal came at the end of the state's short and bitterly contested attempt to show the physicians conspired with the girl's mother, Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt, against the heiress to the large fortune of Peter Cooper Hewitt, inventor.

Judge Tuttle ruled the state had not shown any act of bad faith on the part of the physicians.

Similar charges remain pending against Mrs. Hewitt, who is in New Jersey awaiting trial on an accusation of attempting suicide.

After the bombardment San Sebastian looked like a dead city. Beseiged for nearly a month the inhabitants were worn out.

Leaders of the government forces within the city admitted that the bombardment by rebels were breaking the morale of the population.

A 12-inch shell from the Espana carried away the top floor of a maternity hospital. Only the directors' presence of mind in moving more than 50 expectant mothers to cellars kept the hospital from being turned into a slaughter house. Most of the bombs struck apartment houses and private dwellings.

The fact that there was no great loss of life was explained by the naval shells having been constructed principally to pierce armament and not explode buildings.

"We shall sell our experience dearly," Senor Ortega, civil governor of San Sebastian, told this correspondent. "These bombardments only have served to strengthen our resolves. We will win."

He was crying like a child, his head buried in his arms.

The terrified inhabitants gathered in groups on the street whispering and staring silently for hours at the piled wreckage of their homes. Their only

Pressure Cooker a Necessity Today

Owned by 182 of Hempstead County's 218 Rehabilitation Clients

The pressure cooker, a simple, inexpensive utensil which lasts a lifetime, has made living at home a permanent program for 11,000 rural rehabilitation families served by the Rehabilitation Administration in Arkansas.

In Hempstead county alone, 182 of the 218 rehabilitation clients own pressure cookers and do all their canning at home. The remainder have access to cookers and are planning to buy their own as soon as possible.

Despite the drought, which ruined or seriously damaged spring gardens in many sections, rehabilitation families had canned an average of 122 quarts per family on July 15, when the last report on canning activities were compiled.

Last year and the year before the RA depended largely upon community canning centers to make it mechanically possible for its clients to store away food for the winter months. Also, the kitchens were valuable for training farm wives in the use of canning equipment.

But this year the RA decided it was time to return the canning program to the home and establish it on a permanent basis, so that if the RA were to be discontinued overnight, the families could at least continue to eat, no matter what happened.

The advantages of the pressure cooker in the home is obvious. It saves time formerly lost in going to and from the kitchens. It permits the farm wife to work at canning while preparing daily meals and doing other work, thus preserving every bit of garden produce, fruit and meat available. It is useful also in the preparation of meals when the farm wife has to work in the fields.

But, most important of all, in the eyes of RA officials, it makes living at home a matter so simple that the families who have tried it will never be content to do otherwise.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain. — (P) — Three rebel planes bombed San Sebastian Wednesday night, killing three persons and wounding seven others in a desperate effort to break the morale of the besieged population.

The rebel cruiser Espana at the same time fired six shells into the city without causing apparent loss of life.

One of the airplane bombs tore a hole in an apartment house, burying two women under a mass of bricks and beams. When firemen extricated them, they were dead.

Rebel bombers flew in perfect formation over the city. Despite the screaming of a warning siren, most of the population was caught in the streets. Terrified inhabitants dodged practically surround Czechoslovakia today, but still a democratic president, with democratic and liberal ideals, remains its guiding spirit. He is Eduard Benes, disciple of that other great Czech patriot and leader, Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk.

COUNTRIES ruled by dictators

When, late in 1935, Masaryk retired from the presidency of the country that he had organized during the World War, Benes naturally became its next president. He had become popular as Czechoslovakia's foreign minister, and had been known among diplomats as the cleverest of all. Now all his efforts are bent toward maintaining a liberal and free democratic government for his people, despite the pressure of surrounding dictatorships.

Benes was born on May 28, 1884, of peasant parents. Clumsy at farming, he was sent to school, then to college, where, in a football match, he broke a leg. That broken leg saved him from war service for Austria-Hungary, and gave him the opportunity to work with Dr. Masaryk for the independence of Czechoslovakia.

On his 52d birthday, Czechoslovakia issued a stamp in this great diplomat's honor.

Drouth Is Blessing for the Argentine

Wheat Surplus Reduced and World Prices Bulge Upward Greatly

BUENOS AIRES.—(AP)—For the third consecutive year, Argentina expects to benefit by the drouth which has dealt American farmers heavy blows, although the weather has dealt a lot of punishment in this country, too. Argentina this year has one of the smallest wheat surpluses for export in a decade, and its maize harvest has been retarded and considerably reduced by prolonged and excessive rainfall, yet higher world prices as a result of the North American drouth may alleviate what looked like a poor business year for this country.

Drouths in the United States and Canada have been a dominant factor in pulling Argentina out of the depression trough. This country's worst year was 1933.

May Counteract Slip
Improved grain prices in 1934 and 1935, coupled with American drouths and good Argentine crops resulting in heavy exports, including much maize to the United States itself, gave Argentina tremendous trade boosts in those years.

This year signs of a slip were evident. The 1935-36 wheat crop, recently estimated at 3,800,000 tons, was one of the smallest in a decade, as a result of dry weather in the Argentine.

'Muzzle Loaders' Still in Service

But Most of These Old Guns Are as Dangerous as Dynamite

By LARRY BAUER
Associated Press Writer

There are a few men in this day of modern firearms who hunt for sport with muzzle-loading rifles. There are a few gunsmiths who can repair and do barrel work on the oldtime weapons.

However, most of the old guns to be found outside museum collections are beyond redemption and are unsafe to fire with the black-powder charge for which they were made. These age-worn weapons are just as dangerous as dynamite and none should be used until examined and declared safe by an expert.

There are some of the guns about which haven't been subjected to hard service. For instance, a friend whose wife is an "antique hunter" accompanied her to an old farm house and, while rummaging around, picked up a fine rifle of the so-called Kentucky type with the bullet mold and powder flask. A few percussion caps were in the silver-mounted stock.

Fairly Accurate

After collecting much information on loading, powder charges, etc., and after the gun was proven safe, he began firing at target from a rest and found the rifle surprisingly accurate up to a distance of 40 yards. The size of the ball is near .38 calibre. After this chap started corresponding he discovered there were quite a few "cap-and-ball" enthusiasts extant. One reported he had killed a wild turkey with a similar weapon.

The dove season, which opens soon in northern and central states brings out gunners who in years gone by paid scant attention to the little pigeon. The dove is beginning to rate high as a game bird because of the scarcity of other species. Last year the federal government supplied the 3-shot gun rule in regulations for dove shooting, and prohibited baiting.

Doves Get Around

Experienced sportsmen contend if you score 50 per cent on doves when they have been stirred up and are flying high and wild you belong in the expert class. One of the birds flying fast overhead affords a difficult shot that will test your marksmanship. A light, small-gauge gun is best for this kind of wing-shooting because of the fast handling required. A dove can go places in a hurry, and can do a fair job of darting and zigzagging at times.

John P. Cuneo, president of a Berkeley, Calif., archery club, says white experts with the bow can outshoot Indians on the target range, but the redman can bring down more wild game because they are quicker and have a better way of slinging arrows.

growing season. Newspapers estimate that Argentina has only 600,000 or 700,000 tons of wheat left for export until the new crop comes up into this year. But better prices, influenced by the American drouths, will offset to some extent the lack of quantity.

Argentina's maize surplus for export has not been fixed, because of six weeks of almost continuous rain which has held back the harvest.

Before the abnormal wet weather set in, predictions were for one of the heaviest maize crops on record, but new calculations must await knowledge of the amount of standing corn rotted by rain.

Hope To Ship Beef

The American drouth may result in above-normal shipments of canned

Women Play Important Part In Choosing Today's Motor Car, as They Do In Making It

An Attractive Ensemble at Ford Exposition

Careful Operations in Manufacture of V-8, If Work Is Light and Pleasant, Are Turned Over to Women to Do

National surveys have shown that women are responsible for the choice in approximately 75 per cent of all automobile sales in the United States. They also have an important part in the building of cars and such tasks as they perform are demonstrated daily at the Ford Exposition building at the Texas Centennial in Dallas.

Of the more than 300 employees in the Ford building 65 are women. The modern motor car is by no means an exclusively "man-built" machine. Women, too, add their quota of ingenuity to the manufacture of cars at Dearborn, Mich., and in the "village industries," originated by the Ford Motor Company.

Engineers long since have learned to design automobiles with the woman definitely in mind. This influence is to be seen in special types of upholstery, interior arrangements and color combinations. At every point where beauty can be added without sacrificing any degree of durability or comfort, the modern automobile has been built to meet this demand.

Argentina meat to the United States again this year, and Argentine papers are expressing a faint hope that sanitary restrictions against fresh beef will be removed.

The United States embargo against Argentine chilled beef has prevailed for years because of hoof and mouth disease in this country. A sanitary convention signed in 1935 would change the flat embargo to one permitting shipment of meat from disease-free zones, which would free Patagonia, in southern Argentina, from the restrictions. And Patagonia is a sheep, not a beef producer.

The faint but persistent Argentine hope that it may one day export chilled meat to the United States is coupled with British proposals to place an important duty on Argentine beef. This worries Argentine cattle raisers because Britain buys most of the chilled and frozen beef this country exports.

Australian Products Barred
BRUSSELS.—(AP)—Importation of

of Australian grain and preserved meat is prohibited by Belgium as retaliation for the higher tariffs the Australian government recently put into effect. A similar measure against Australian wool and barley is due shortly. Australian exports to Belgium in 1935 totalled approximately $20,000,000 compared with only $2,000,000 worth of Belgian goods exported to Australia.

A "Crazy Man's" Advice Very Good

Told Neighbors to Spend Less on Weddings and Funerals

BELGRADE.—(AP)—The common sense of a man long regarded as crazy has made the Serbian town of Smederevo into a model community.

When Jovan Popowitch returned from the World war, he gave all his possessions to the poor, and lived for 10 years in his family vault. Then he went to live in a cave outside the town and farmers, although they believed him insane, brought him food.

The farmers often asked him for advice, and found it good. He advised them to work harder, plan better, and save their money instead of spending it all as customary on weddings and funerals. His fame spread, and people followed his advice where they didn't listen to similar instructions from teachers and officials.

The result is that Smederevo is unusually prosperous.

There are three major types of wine known to the trade and the consumer: sparkling, still, and fortified.

Lights Prohibited
SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(AP)—Clusters of lights will be prohibited within a three-mile radius of Palomar observatory, home of the giant 200 inch telescope, if California Institute of Technology officials have their way.

The Palomar site in the mountains 50 miles northeast of here was chosen partly because of its isolation. The institute's observatory council anticipates, however, that camps and resorts will spring up near Mount Palomar when the big telescope is put to use and has asked the San Diego county board of supervisors to establish a zone of three miles about the observatory in which no clusters of bright lights will be permitted.

WHY PAVE STREETS WITH CONCRETE?

here's why—

- 1 Every street demands a gritty, non-skid surface for the protection of motorists and pedestrians.
- 2 At night you need a pavement with high visibility.
- 3 Safety also calls for a pavement that is free from chuck holes, ruts and bumps . . . and stays that way with minimum maintenance.
- 4 You want a pavement that drains quickly . . . that is easily cleaned and stays clean . . . no depressions to catch dirt.
- 5 You want a pavement that makes the whole neighborhood look modern, prosperous, attractive.

Concrete . . . and only concrete . . . completely meets all of these specifications.

If You Had Known

By Helen Welshimer

If you had known that Canaan would be yours
When forty years of wilderness were done;
That you would cross the river some sweet spring.
When peace returned and Israel's wars were done;
Then I could understand the ease with which
You kept your compass true to cloud and flame,
And why you told God's people of the land
Of gentle fields from which their fathers came.

BUT knowing that you could not ever stand
Upon the shore beyond the river's edge,
You walked those dark and countless miles with grace,
A leader still, heart faithful to its pledge.
If I should find I, too, have been denied
A Promised Land, I pray that I may show
That courage in my wilderness, dear God,
That Moses had a long, long time ago.

Yankees Apparent League Winners

Leave Second Place in American to Five Clubs to Settle

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service
NEW YORK.—New York Yankees, long considered the favorites to win the American League pennant, leave only a five-club scramble for second place and the dismal prospect of waning patronage for the remaining seven weeks of the schedule.

Flag gathering clubs in the junior circuit make a habit of lapping their field a time or two some time before the finish.

Meanwhile, more fortunate National League owners gather in the clubhouse as four or more arrays fight it out all the way to the wire. This year is no exception in the older loop, with the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs at each other's throat, and the New York Giants making a determined effort to hang on.

There have been finer all-round championship outfits than the Yankees of 1936, but the Bronx bombers fastened a strangle hold on the gonfalon in the most satisfactory way. They overpowered each challenger in turn.

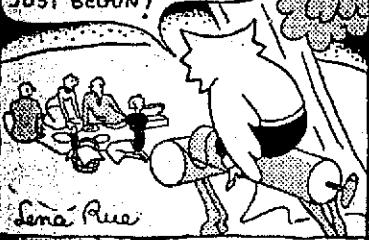

First it was Washington, returning home after bagging 11 of 16 games on the road. The Ruppert Rifles marched into Griffin Stadium and twice bumped off the Senators in a Fourth of July double-header.

End Excitement
Detroit Tigers roared into Yankee Stadium, July 15, with a record of 14 victories in their last 16 starts. It looked

CARDS CLUB CUBS TO TAKE LEAD

Going into the eighth inning of the first game of their crucial series with the Cubs in Chicago, tied at 1-1, the Gaschouse Gang from St. Louis bombarded Curt Davis with base hits, climaxed by Johnny Mize's 13th home run of the season, to win 6-1, and take the league lead away from the Bruins. Above is a bit of action during the eighth inning. It shows Manager Frankie Frisch sliding into third, from where he scored later on Mize's circuit clout.

ed as though the 1935 champions might get some place despite injuries and illness, but the Yanks sent them away doctoring the wounds of three reverses in four appearances.

Catalyzed by splendid pitching, the Chicago White Sox rose from comparative obscurity under the miracle man, Jimmy Dykes. They returned to Comiskey Park with a road record of 17 triumphs in 21 engagements, mainly at the expense of eastern teams.

"Bring on those Yanks!" shouted a highly enthused baseball population. Joe McCarthy's stalwarts came on all right, July 24. There was much excitement. Bottles were hurled from grandstands packed with 50,000 rabid rooters. One of them struck and incapacitated Umpire Bill Summers.

But the Yankees left Chicago with three consecutive victories and another prominent rival crushed.

In Cleveland, the Indians were whooping it up on the strength of sweeping 18 out of 23 games and rising from fifth to second place.

But the big guns of DiMaggio, Gehrig, Dickey, Selkirk & Co. and pitching that was plenty good enough accounted for two games and squelched the Redmer's uprising. The Tribe had worked up its followers to such a pitch that the third game was switched to Cleveland's beautiful lake front stadium, where 65,342 persons saw the clubs battle 16 thrilling innings to a 4 to 4 tie.

Play to 216,842
Colonel Jacob Ruppert's club would have a highly satisfactory season financially if it didn't play to another customer. The Cleveland crowd was the second largest that had paid to see murderers' row this year. The Yankees battled the Senators before 71,754 paying guests in New York on Memorial Day.

The big gathering in the Cleveland Stadium for the Yankees' swing through the west to the surprising total of 216,842. The three games the league leaders played in St. Louis to start the tour drew only 4500 paid admissions. Oddly enough, that was the only spot where they were knocked off, the lowly Browns taking two out of three.

The three contests played in Chicago in two days were good for 65,000 customers, and in Detroit four games in as many days brought out 59,000.

The latter stressed the Detroit fans' loyalty to the club. The Yanks perched at Navin Field the first four days of the week, and after the Boston Red Sox had run up large scores in sweeping a three-game set with the Bengals. Schoolboy Rowe took two games from the Yankees.

In Cleveland the first two contests were played at League Park, where the paid attendance totaled 23,000.

So it is that the affluent Yankees can stand a letdown, but its representatives' unconditional surrender certainly won't tend to increase the trade's interest elsewhere. Even the more violent addicts can't get heated up over a club fighting for second place.

Take Color Tones From the Leaves

Colored Gloves Capture Paris Style Shows for This Autumn

PARIS, France.—(AP)—Colored gloves in autumn leaf tones came to town with the fall fashion displays shown in the salons of leading Paris designers.

Molyneux showed "brand new" glove kid designs made for him by Chantel with his new autumn town clothes. They were slip-on styles with turn down cuff, their only trimming being a big kid-covered button. Not even on the backs where triple stitching usually lay around, was there a single note of decoration.

A number of colored suedes were also shown. Those, too, had plain backs but were often made without cuffs, the top merely rolled and over-stitched by hand the way handkerchief hems are done.

Maple Shoes, Too
Trees, leaves and moss inspired the colors for the gloves. Oak was the name for a light tan—almost a yellow. Cedar, elm and chestnut provided various browns and maple furnished the glowing red of the turned maple leaf in autumn.

The maple leaf shade was also seen in new shoes designed for early fall appearances. A spectator sports model in this soft red is made of a box calf, but high in front and strap fastened with a gold buckle at the side. The perforated trimming is underlaid with beige kid.

Enzel designed for Maggy Rouff to display with fall afternoon clothes a shoe in steel grey lace kid softened with pearl or nude finish. This is a high heeled model made with a number of narrow straps giving a good deal of openwork treatment. Another of her shoes is an afternoon pump in black antelope with a cutiecut motif across the front made of three tiny scalloped bands of patent leather.

Boots Are Good
Some new evening sandals in gold kid have braids of the kid for strap trimming which is a newer note than the plain flat strap. A low-heeled evening sandal combines gold kid with bronze in striking effect.

Boots, too, appear in the fall fashion picture—the kind that come above the ankle for several inches and usually lace over a tall tongue. One of the new ones combines black patent leather with a black shaved fur, suggesting Russian influence.

Balloon tires for wheelbarrows are now on the market. They prevent the wheels, under a heavy load, from sinking into the ground.

Transatlantic Hop Their Honeymoon

Clarence Chamberlin and Bride Planning Stratosphere Attempt

By WILLIAM BORING

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Clarence Chamberlin and his bride of less than two months plan a transatlantic honeymoon flight—through the stratosphere.

They will climb into his two-seated Lockheed monoplane at St. Johns, Newfoundland, sometime in the next two months and take off for one of three points—Land's End, England, London or Paris.

A flier who graduated from the ranks of transport hostesses, Mrs. Chamberlin says she will do the "backseat" piloting on the ceiling hop. She is the former Louise Ashby, daughter of State Senator George Ashby of Maine.

Of the proposed flight, Chamberlin "It will be only a part of our honeymoon."

But he added he expects to prove the era of stratosphere flying is near due to the "remarkable advances in call will depend upon whether a majority of both houses signify their willingness to vote for the proposed appropriation measure.

His letter said that the legislature intended to appropriate 35 per cent of the sales tax for old age pensions, unemployment relief and welfare purposes, but that through an oversight only $500,000 was made available for welfare and pension purposes.

$1,000,000 Above Estimates
Figures tabulated at the State Revenue Department Wednesday showed that sales tax collections from July 1, 1935, to June 30, 1936, totaled $3,268,548, which was approximately $1,000,000 above estimates made at the time the law was passed by the 1935 legislature.

If 35 per cent of receipts from the tax had been appropriated for pensions and unemployment relief, as contemplated by the legislature, the welfare fund would have received more than $1,000,000 from the sales tax during the past year.

Governor Futrell said that members of the State Welfare Commission had discussed the matter with him and that he had promised several months ago to consider calling a special session if the commission found that available funds were inadequate. An explanation of operation of the Welfare Department, distributed to county welfare boards by the Executive Committee of the Welfare Commission, recently, said that only $105,000 from the sales tax had gone to pay pensions to the aged up to the latter part of July.

It was said, however, that the amount was increased to $200,000 early in August by transfer of an additional $95,000 from the general revenue fund to the welfare fund.

The welfare fund did not receive any sales tax money until Attorney General Carl E. Bailey ruled last year that $500,000 appropriated from the state treasury should be transferred from the general revenue sales tax fund to the welfare fund.

The law provided, however, that $300,000 a year should be transferred from the welfare fund to the charity fund for support of the State Hospital and Tuberculosis sanatorium, if that amount should be needed. Of the $395,000 transferred from the general revenue fund to the welfare fund to date, $195,000 went to the charity fund, leaving $200,000 to apply on pension payments.

Beginning Would Be Possible
The Welfare Commission's explanation of its operations showed that the welfare fund had received $348,110.99 from sources other than the sales tax, from April 1, 1935, to June 30, 1936. Included in these receipts was $104,441 from the liquor gallonage tax. Receipts from those sources for 15 months indicated annual receipts of $678,480 a year.

The commission said that pension payments, now averaging $8 per month and unemployment allowance, averaging $4 per month, could be doubled if the full 35 per cent of the sales tax should be made available for welfare purposes, leaving $300,000 for the charity fund. If money for the State Hospital and sanatorium could be provided from another source, pensions and relief allowances could be more than doubled, since the increased state money would be matched by federal funds, the statement said.

The scheduled baseball game here Thursday afternoon between Hope and Nashville has been postponed indefinitely.

Manager Lloyd Coop said that he was unable to get his players together, due to the fact that several of them were out of the city.

He expressed the hope of bringing Nashville here in the near future.

The Lumberjacks will go up against the Barksdale Flyers of Shreveport at 3:30 p. m. Sunday. The batteries for Hope will be McDowell and Sparks.

It will be the second appearance of the Barksdale team here this season. The first game ended with a victory for the Lumberjacks.

the science of aviation engineering." If the Chamberlins are successful in their flight they will be making aviation history.

Chamberlin says man never has attempted a solely stratosphere hop across a large body of water.

The failure on the part of the late Wiley Post to reach his goal in stratosphere flying—Post was forced down short of his destination on each of his transcontinental hops after flying hundreds of miles through the stratosphere—doesn't faze the veteran flier.

Nor does it bother his wife. "I am so thrilled over the flight I can hardly wait," says blonde Mrs. Chamberlin.

Plans 100-Mile Speed
Her husband says equipment for stratosphere flying has been so perfected at this time that no trouble should be encountered.

"Clouds in the summer season" he says, "lie below the 30,000-foot altitude level. In the winter season, they're below 25,000 feet. By flying 35,000 feet we shall miss all clouds, have the advantage of good tail winds prevalent at that altitude and experience a minimum of resistance."

A 1,200 horsepower, supercharged motor will send the Chamberlins' ship, "Miss Stratosphere," zooming through the air at 500 miles-an-hour clip. Chamberlin says, the great speed being made possible by stratosphere flying.

'15 Hours to Paris'
Equipped with all improved devices for safe flying, "Miss Stratosphere" has retractable landing gear making possible forced landings in water or on land. The ship has a wingspread of 42 feet and is trimmed in yellow and black. She has a gasoline storage capacity of 600 gallons.

Chamberlin says one of the purposes of the flight is to pave the way for "shorter flying time flights" across the Atlantic.

"If we make the 1,850-mile hop from Newfoundland to Land's End," he says, "we expect to complete the journey in from five to six hours. A Lon-

Capacity Crowd Expected for Champion M'Guirk Go Friday

Indications of a capacity crowd appeared Thursday with the rapid sale of advance tickets to the South Walnut street wrestling show Friday night where LeRoy McGuirk, the world's light heavyweight champ, will perform.

McGuirk, wearing the championship belt, is shown in the picture. The belt however, will not be at stake Friday night.

The match between the champ and Jack Curtis, fast stepping Mississippian, is a non-title affair. Curtis made his debut here last week and impressed with two straight falls over Frankie Hill, one of the most popular grapplers ever to appear here.

Jacks Newsstand, where tickets are on sale, reported that more than 50 tickets had been sold through Wednesday night. Thursday will be the last day to get tickets at 25 cents, good for any seat in the stadium. Admission Friday will be 40 cents.

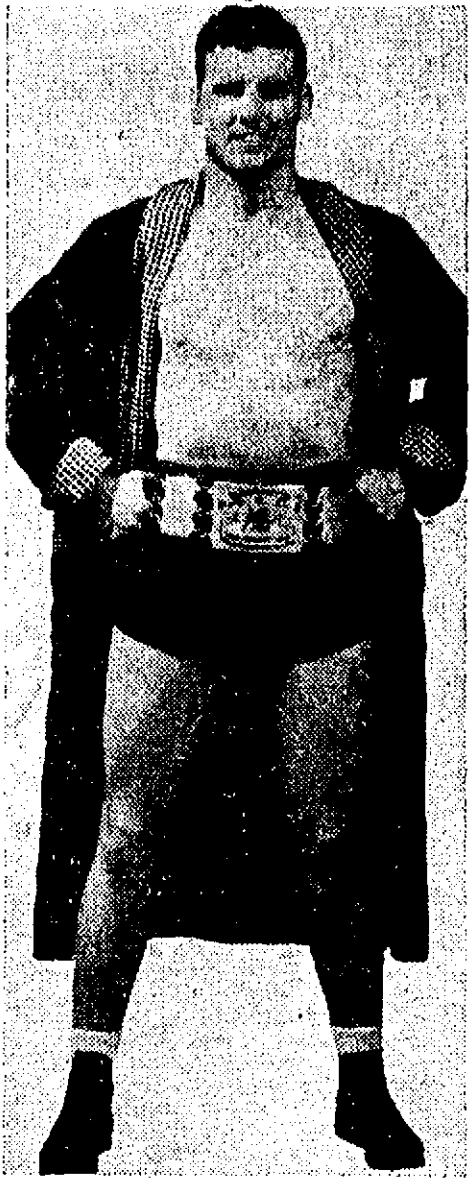

W. C. (Chick) Page, vacationing in Dallas, is expected to return and act as referee in the match between McGuirk and Curtis.

The semi-final event will be between Pat Newman of Texarkana and Pete Baltman of New York. Both are light heavies and clever grapplers.

Newman, a former sailor, showed here two weeks ago against Jack Savich of Chicago and won in two straight falls. Newman held the middleweight championship title of his ship while in the U. S. navy.

Baltman is a veteran of the mat. He knows the holds and is a scientific workman, capable of turning meanie if he is forced to do so.

The show will start promptly at 8:15 p. m. Promoter Bert Mauldin announced.

don or Paris' hop would require 10 to 15 hours."

Regarding the speed angle, Mrs. Chamberlin explains: "That's one reason I don't mind the trip. We will make it in such a short time, I won't have time to get scared. But I never am afraid flying with Clarence. He knows the mechanics of aviation as well as being the pilot he is, you know."

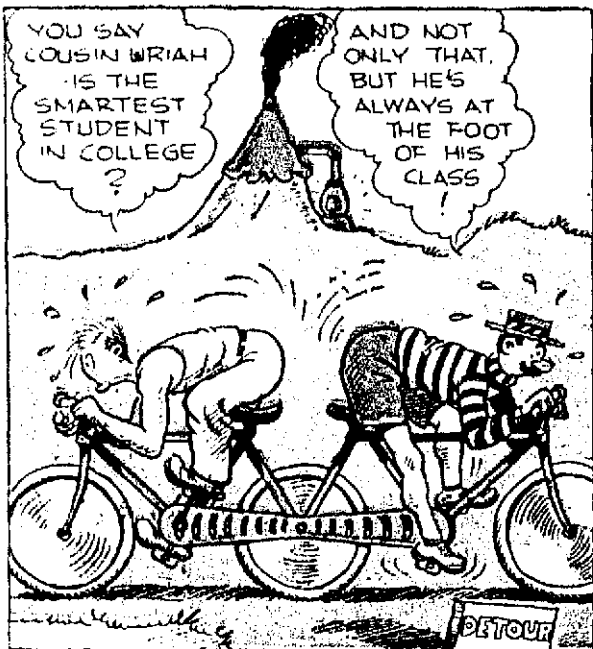

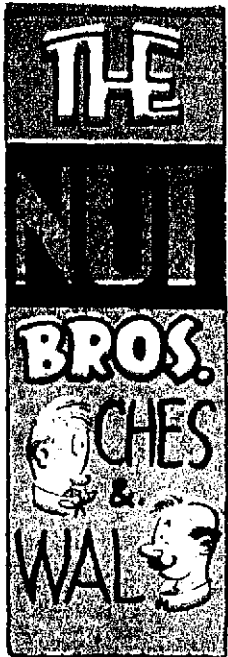

Financed By Passengers
More than 50,000 Americans will finance the stratosphere flight.

They represent passengers the Chamberlins and their associate pilot, Jack Wall, of Eastman, Ga., have taken for air rides at one dollar apiece.

The Chamberlins are barnstorming on their honeymoon to obtain money to finance the flight. They are flying

WELL, YOUNG MAN, NOW THAT YOU'RE OUTA THE HOOSEGOW, WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO?

KIND O' HOMESICK, SUH. RECKON I'LL GO BACK TO THE STATES.

SPLENDID! YOU CAN GO WITH US. WON'T TAKE NO FOR AN ANSWER. LET THE OTHER FELLOW HANDLE THE PIGS. WE'LL GRAB A SPECIAL TRAIN.

MY DAUGHTER SAYS YOU'RE OKAY. SHE'S A HILARIOUS KID — FULLA THE OLD NICK — BUT WHEN SHE SAYS A MAN'S OKAY, THAT SETTLES IT.

YES, SIRE. GLAD TO HAVE YOU ALONG. SORRY WE CAN'T DO MONTE CARLO, BUT I GOTTA RUSH BACK TO THE STATES.

URGENT BUSINESS.

WELL, HERE WE ARE. ALL ABOARD FOR THE U.S.A.

BLAZES! WHAT A YACHT!

IT'LL DO. IT'LL — HELLO! WHO ARE THOSE PEOPLE?

LOOK LIKE ORIENTALS, SUH. THEY JUMPED INTO A MOTOR BOAT.

IS SOMETHING WRONG, DADDY? I DON'T KNOW WHERE'S THE CREW? THEY OUGHTA BE ON DECK.

MY STARS! WHAT HAPPENED, SMITH?

IT WAS A HOLDUP!

THOSE CONFOUNDED, ALMOND-EYED ORIENTALS, SIR, FORCED US INTO HERE WITH PISTOLS.

GREAT SCOTT! IF THEY'VE STOLEN THOSE BLUEPRINTS—

AH, STILL HERE. THANK HEAVENS FOR THAT! THEY TOOK SOME WORTHLESS STUFF FROM THE SAFE, BUT OVERLOOKED THE SECRET PANEL.

DID THEY STEAL ANY MONEY?

HUMPH! MONEY ISN'T WHAT THEY'RE AFTER. THEY'LL BE BACK. YOU WON'T NEED TO CHASE A.L. OVER THE EARTH LOOKING FOR EXCITEMENT. EITHER — YOU'LL GET YOUR FILL OF IT AT HOME!

Love that Defied the Hellespont

© 1936 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

STONE walls and strong currents failed to keep two famed lovers of history from meeting nightly. But when the swain dared the raging waters once too often, tragedy befell them. This is the classic story of Hero, beautiful priestess of Seestos on the European shore of the Hellespont, now the Dardanelles, and Leander, handsome young mortal of Abydos, two miles across the strait. Hero, dedicated to Venus, Goddess of Beauty, was confined in a tower by the sea. Venus saw both priestess and mortal at a festival one day, and ordered Cupid to pierce both with love darts. Thereafter neither tower nor raging sea could separate them.

Each night Hero lighted a torch and guided her lover across the two miles of swift current. Before dawn Leander swam back to Abydos.

One night a violent storm arose. Leander was crossing the Hellespont, when the wind blew out Hero's torch. She relighted it, but in vain. All night she waited for her lover. In the morning she found him, dashed to death against the rocks. Stricken by grief, she threw herself into the Hellespont, to meet the fate of her lover.

A stamp issued by Turkey in 1913 recalls this tragedy. Its picture, what is mis-named "Leander's Tower."

TO LIKE TO LEAVE A NOTE FOR WILLIS TO CUT THE GRASS - IT'S THE WORST LOOKING ON THE BLOCK BUT...

BUT, IT'S NOT MUCH USE, BECAUSE HE LETS ON HE DIDN'T SEE THE NOTE - WELL, LETS THINK...

OH, WHAT? THE USE? WEI? BETTER GO

NO, WAIT! I HAVE IT! THAT OL' BOY IS GOING TO GET THE SURPRISE OF HIS LIFE!

SEE THIS? WE LOCK UP EVERY-THING BUT ONE WINDOW SO THAT WILLIS CAN'T GET IN ANY OTHER WAY-

CUT THE GRASS

YES, YES, GO ON.

THEN, WHEN HE OPENS TH' WINDOW, I'M FIXING IT SO THIS BIG BOARD WILL POP RIGHT DOWN IN FRONT OF HIS EYES, AND HE'S BOUND TO SEE IT!

SOUNDS O.K.

THAT'S IT - PUT THE MOWER RIGHT UNDER TH' WINDOW.

OH, I'VE THOUGHT IT ALL OUT - WHEN HE LOOKS IN THE WINDOW AND DOESN'T SEE ANY NOTE AROUND, HE'LL CLIMB BOLDLY IN, AND... HA-HA...

WE HAVE THE FOX, THIS TIME, WE'VE OUT-FOXED HIM!

I'D LIKE TO SEE HIS EYES, WHEN THAT SIGN BOBS DOWN IN FRONT OF HIM!

WELL, WE'RE ALMOST HOME - I'M ANXIOUS TO SEE IF THE GRASS IS CUT.

THERE'S A POSSIBILITY THAT HE HASN'T BEEN HOME, YET-

YOU BET YOUR LIFE HE'S BEEN HOME - LOOK AT THIS PUDDING HERE!

WELL, HE WONT BE ABLE TO DENY HE SAW THE NOTE -

I SEE YOU WERE HOME WHILE WE WERE GONE! WILL YOU EXPLAIN WHY YOU DIDN'T MOW THE LAWN?

HOW DID I KNOW YOU WANTED IT CUT?

DO YOU DARE TO DENY THAT YOU SAW THIS WHEN YOU CAME IN?

HOW COULD I SEE THAT? WHEN I OPENED TH' WINDOW SLUMP'N HIT ME ON TH' HEAD AN' MADE ME GROGGY AND BLIND.

OH, YOU CAN'T DO A THING WITH HIM!

WAIT! I'LL GET HIM! HOW, THEN, COULD YOU SEE SO WELL IN THE ICE BOX?

OH - I STILL HAD MY SENSE OF TOUCH AND SMELL - THANK GOSH FER THAT!

BY SELECTIVE BREEDING, MANY STRANGE SPECIES HAVE BEEN DEVELOPED/ HERE WE SEE THE TELESCOPE GOLDFISH, WHICH ACTUALLY IS VERY NEAR-SIGHTED

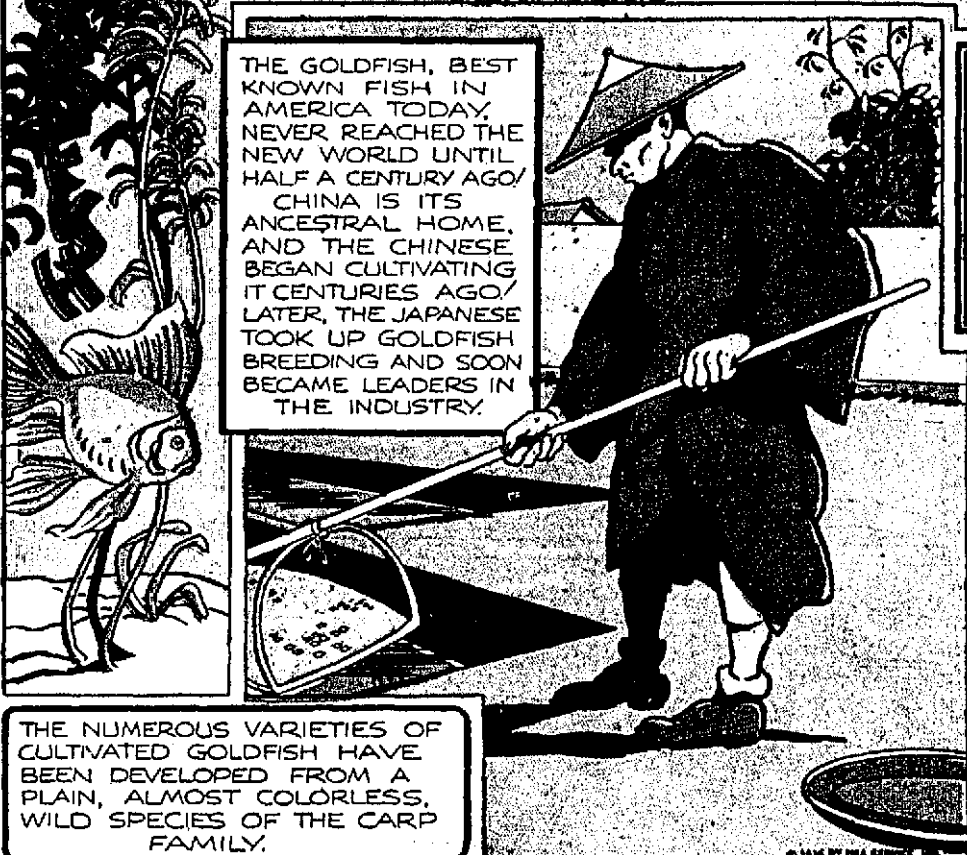

CURIOUS, INDEED, IS THE JAPANESE LIONHEAD. PERHAPS THE HIGHEST DEVELOPED GOLDFISH

THE FRINGETAIL HAS A TAIL FIN SOMETIMES TWICE AS LONG AS THE FISH ITSELF.

THE GOLDFISH, BEST KNOWN FISH IN AMERICA TODAY, NEVER REACHED THE NEW WORLD UNTIL HALF A CENTURY AGO/ CHINA IS ITS ANCESTRAL HOME, AND THE CHINESE BEGAN CULTIVATING IT CENTURIES AGO/ LATER, THE JAPANESE TOOK UP GOLDFISH BREEDING AND SOON BECAME LEADERS IN THE INDUSTRY.

THE NUMEROUS VARIETIES OF CULTIVATED GOLDFISH HAVE BEEN DEVELOPED FROM A PLAIN, ALMOST COLORLESS, WILD SPECIES OF THE CARP FAMILY.

JUDGING FROM THE NUMBER OF FOSSIL SKELETONS OF THIS SLUGGISH AND DEGENERATE MONSTROSITY THAT HAVE BEEN FOUND IN THE SEDIMENTARY DEPOSITS, LAID DOWN 180,000,000 YEARS AGO, THIS PREHISTORIC AMPHIBIAN MUST HAVE BEEN A VERY COMMON ONE. LACK OF ADAPTABILITY UNDOUBTLY ACCOUNTED FOR ITS EXTINCTION, FOR IT OBVIOUSLY COULD NOT COMPETE WITH THE MYRIAD OF AQUATIC REPTILIAN LIFE CONSTANTLY DEVELOPING IN ITS HABITAT.

THROUGH THE AIR-CONDITIONING VENT HIGH UP ON THE LABORATORY WALL, SEEPS A PALE GREEN GAS, OF A SWEETISH, PUNGENT ODOR... WHILE ON THE FLOOR OF THE ROOM....

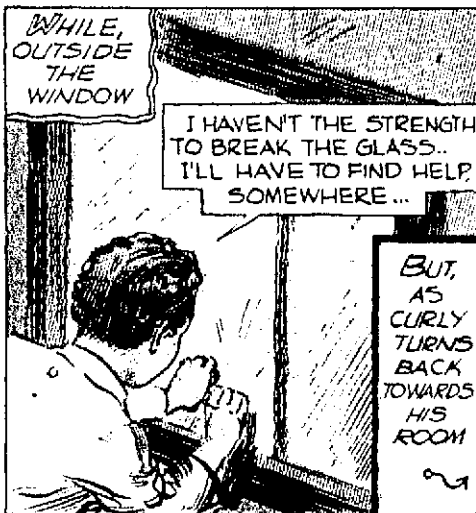

WHAT'S HAPPENED TO ME?? MY BODY SEEMS TO WEIGH A TON... I MUST GET TO A WINDOW!

RAISING HERSELF, WITH A PAINFUL EFFORT, MYRA SEES HER YOUTHFUL PATIENT'S FACE PRESSED TO THE WINDOW... SHE MANAGES A FEEBLE SIGN OF DISTRESS!!

HELLO! AN OPERATING MASK! PERHAPS I CAN HOLD OUT A WHILE LONGER!

WHILE, OUTSIDE THE WINDOW

I HAVEN'T THE STRENGTH TO BREAK THE GLASS... I'LL HAVE TO FIND HELP SOMEWHERE...

BUT, AS CURLY TURNS BACK TOWARDS HIS ROOM

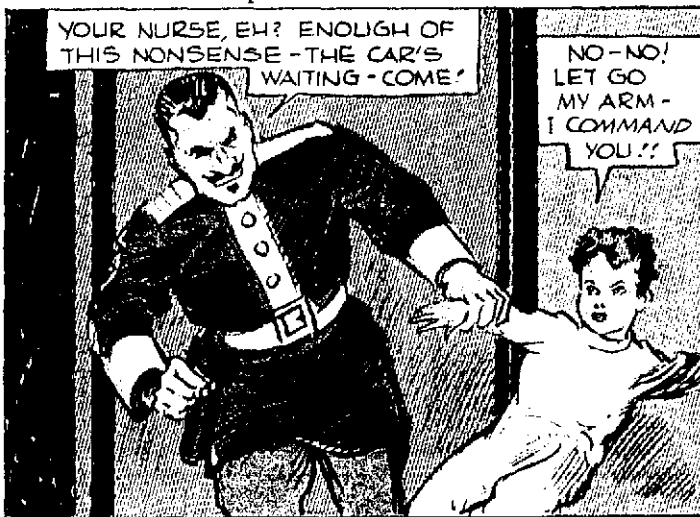

COLONEL ZORIA!!

YOUR HIGHNESS! WHAT ARE YOU DOING OUT HERE?

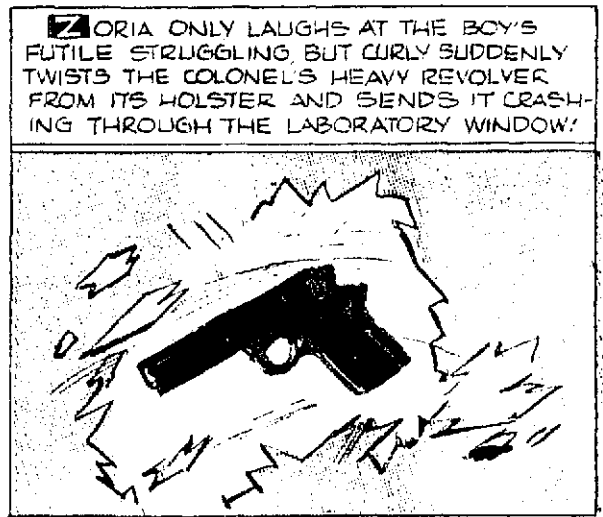

I WASN'T AWARE THAT YOU'D RECOVERED SO COMPLETELY - WE MUST FLY TO ANGURA, AT ONCE!

WAIT! NOT NOW... YOU MUST HELP ME... MY NURSE, SHE...

YOUR NURSE, EH? ENOUGH OF THIS NONSENSE - THE CAR'S WAITING - COME!

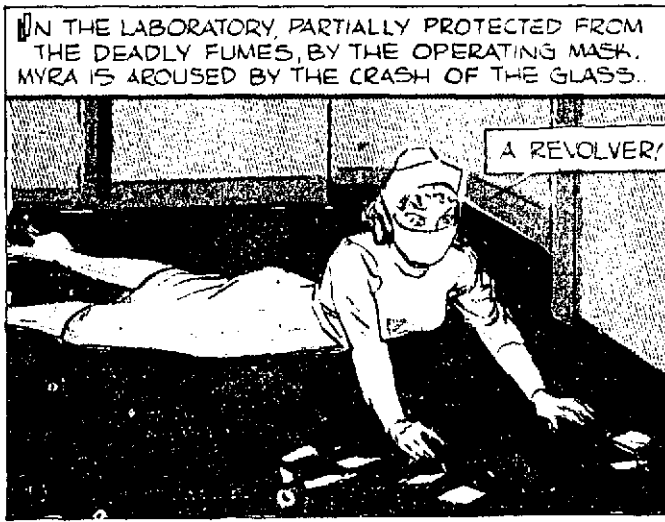

NO-NO! LET GO MY ARM - I COMMAND YOU!!

ZORIA ONLY LAUGHS AT THE BOY'S FUTILE STRUGGLING, BUT CURLY SUDDENLY TWISTS THE COLONEL'S HEAVY REVOLVER FROM ITS HOLSTER AND SENDS IT CRASHING THROUGH THE LABORATORY WINDOW!

YOU'LL PAY FOR THAT FOLLY PRINCE ADRIAN! HOLD TIGHT! I'M GOING TO JUMP FOR IT!

IN THE LABORATORY, PARTIALLY PROTECTED FROM THE DEADLY FUMES, BY THE OPERATING MASK, MYRA IS AROUSED BY THE CRASH OF THE GLASS.
